Alexandra Elve/ Primary Examiner, Art Unit 1793

Continuation of 13. Other: Applicant argues that no new matter has been presented. The examiner respectfully disagrees because "superpose an image" is not present in applicant's specification. Applicant's specification states the superpositioning of a reference image; this is not the same thing as "superpose an image". Applicant argues that Tomita only describes using one of the two imaging devices. The examiner respectfully disagrees because applicant is referring to one specific embodiment. Furthermore, Tomita et al. discloses: "In accordance with further features of the invention, a second imaging apparatus, such as a camera, may be provided with the first camera having a narrow field of view and the other camera having a wide field of view thereby providing a new of possibilities. First, the two imaging apparatuses, for example, cameras, may be used to check the position of the components of different sizes, so that the imaging apparatus with a narrow field of view detects small components where high precision is needed, and the imaging apparatus with a wide field of view detects large components". All arguments set forth in the instant after final are well taken, however, rejections of the claims is sustained for the reasons set forth in the final office action .
